

Free UK Genealogy works with volunteers to make transcriptions of family history records. We are currently working to transcribe the England and Wales index of Births Marriages and Deaths, historic Parish Registers and 19th Century Censuses. We make the databases we create freely available for people to search in order to support their family history research.

WHO WE ARE

FreeREG

Free Internet searching of parish records - baptisms, marriages and burials – England, Wales, and Scotland c.1538 ->

OBJECTIVES AND POLICIES

Parish registers prior to 1837, when legal government registration started, are the only source of genealogy. Before then it was the Church who recorded Baptisms, Marriages and Burials.

Searching the parish registers is real detective work. Much more interesting than the GRO (General Records Office) indexes or the Census.

There were people who were not baptised, and those who could not afford to get married, so just told everyone that they were married – and that was it. So no records exist.

You have the right to go to any Church and ask to see the registers, for free. The Registers are in the public domain. But many are very fragile (and many have been lost or borrowed and not returned) and have been given to the County Records Offices for safe keeping. They have been microfilmed to avoid them having to be handled. These microfilms are the property of whoever created them and they can restrict their use. There are now digital photographs being made by LDS (Church of Latter Day Saints) who make it even more difficult for us to gain access to transcribe them.

Many of those who research FreeREG live overseas. It is just not practical to visit every Records Office or Church to look up the entries. So our database is their best source.

Since the original registers are in the public domain, we intend FreeREG to be the same.

freereg.org.uk

- FreeREG database began about 20 years ago, contains 46 million entries, thousands of new records are added daily
- new version FreeREG , clean and clear presentation
- additional search possibilities: include nearby parishes
- online access to pre-1837 parish records
- accurate – extensive training and mentoring of new transcribers
- Some records have added notes on occupation, abode, age, vicar's comments

Some counties have better covered than others - depends on volunteers, some county Archives have handed records to major players, so harder for FreeREG to access these sources

County and Place Records

These pages contain information about our transcriptions for each County, Place, Church and Register in the database: everything from a detailed county listing right down to how many records the database holds for every ten-year period of an individual register.

To get started, choose a county from the list below. We use the 1831 county boundaries.

London (City) (LND)
Middlesex (MDX)
Norfolk (NFK)
Northamptonshire (NTH)
